Editor Hits High Court in Census Case

TEXARKANA — On Monday the Supreme Court of the United States ruled that the information a private citizen gives to the Census Bureau in strictest confidence may be used to incriminate him before the Department of Justice, Alex. H. Washburn, editor and publisher of the Hope (Ark.) Star, told the Texarkana Kiwanis Club today (Wednesday) noon.

The Federal Trade Commission asked for the confidential information and was supported by the Antitrust Division of the Justice Department, but the disclosure was opposed by the Census Bureau and the Bureau of the Budget, which took the position a promise had been made and should be kept, Washburn added.

"But promises mean nothing and constitutional guarantees still less in a government which has grown faithless," the editor continued. "Like Hitler, our high federal court subscribes to the theory that 'The end justifies the means' — and therefore cancels the constitutional right of the citizen to refuse to incriminate himself."

Search and Seizure
Monday's decision is merely the latest in a series of ominous supreme court opinions. Twice before the court has struck down the guarantee that a man's house shall be safe against search and seizure except for a search warrant. In a Maryland case the court held that sanitary inspectors could come onto a man's property without a warrant to enforce that state's so-called "cockroach law."

Washburn, national chairman of the Press Committee to Eliminate Censorship by Taxation, said the court's studios ignoring of citizens' rights in this republic was "doubly alarming because nowadays bureaucrats are writing law without benefit of the congress — and the high court is upholding the bureaucrats against the citizens."

He cited his own running fight with the Internal Revenue Service, which held the cost of circulating Arkansas tax-vote petitions in 1955 and 1957 to be non-deductible expenses "because the petitions sought to influence legislation" — a fight on which he said he spent $50,000 personally, only to lose in the supreme court.

Timken Case
"If you think my case exceptional, I have news for you," Washburn continued. "The Timken Roller Bearing Co. included in some of its advertisements an attack upon Communism, and another upon inflation. The Internal Revenue Service ruled such advertising could not be deducted as 'ordinary and necessary' business expenses."

"Furthermore, the IRS has warned trade associations and retail merchant groups that if they make an appearance for or against legislation in the congress or a legislature they run the risk of having their members' dues declared non-deductible."

"Do our judges belong to the people or the crown? They belong to the crown — as the supreme court discloses day by day."

This federal tyranny stems directly from the people's elections, Washburn continued, "and responsible, taxpaying citizens have lost control of those elections," he added.

"I have a solution," Washburn continued. "and here I am speaking merely as an individual editor — not as chairman of the national Press, the other editor members of which, of course, have their own opinions."

Election "Grab"
"America's problem is that too many citizens are voting money to themselves instead of voting for the good of their country. I outlined my solution in a speech October 19 at Arkadelphia, Ark."

"I said that 21.1% of the people of my home county of Hempstead, Arkansas, are receiving cash welfare grants or surplus commodities; and, Hempstead being an average county in the state, this 21.1% figure probably holds true for all Arkansas. With a fifth of the votes held by those who receive taxes instead of paying them it is clear that the taxpayers, whether big or small, have lost control of government."

"Therefore, I told the Arkadelphia audience, 'the salvation of state and nation is to strike off the voting lists all those receiving welfare cash or surplus commodities.'"

182,400 Receive Surplus Food

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Welfare Commissioner Carl Adams said Tuesday the welfare department issued 3.7 million pounds of surplus commodities during November. Adams said the commodities, issued to 182,400 persons, were valued at $847,708. The poundage and number of recipients were the lows for the year, Adams said.

UN Jets Blast Hotel to Flush Katanga Group

BY JOHN LATZ
ELISABETHVILLE, Katanga, the Congo (AP) — Four Swedish U.N. jets blasted the Lido Hotel with bombs and rockets today in an apparent attempt to flush out Katanga troops occupying the building.

(Katanga's mission in Brussels said U.N. forces launched a general attack in Elisabethville and that President Moise Tshombe's government had wired the mission: "It is feared that the Katanga forces will not be able to resist.")

Giant U.S. Air Force Globemasters had poured fresh troops and equipment into Elisabethville to strengthen the U.N. combat forces.

Fresh Katanga troops moved in from the north and U.S. Globemasters from Leopoldville brought in 216 Swedish soldiers newly arrived from Europe.

Katanga Gen. Norbert Moke said he planned to take the offensive soon against the U.N. New violence threatened in Kivu, the superiority of the U.N. weapons and jet air force. The number of Katanga reinforcements was not stated.

New violence threatened in Kivu Province, north of Katanga. Two thousand troops from the Congo's Oriental Province, were reported moving in to attempt to take over Kivu. Provincial government sources said the troops belong to leftist Antoine Gizenga, nominal vice premier of the central Congolese government whose Oriental regime is virtually secessionist.

Gizenga, political heir of Patrice Lumumba and favorite of the Communist bloc, made a brief truce with Congo Premier Cyrille Adoula but left Leopoldville weeks ago. He was implicated in the slaying of 13 Italian U.N. airmen last month at Kindu in Kivu and the United States warned in the U.N. Security Council that he could pose a more serious threat to the Congo than Katanga President Moise Tshombe.

Both United Nations and Katanga sources reported local U.N. successes in the Katanga fighting. George Ivan Smith, U.N. chief in Elisabethville, said Ethiopian soldiers had seized control of the town's building in the Katanga capital. He said it had been used by Katanga forces as an observation post and for firing mortar shells against U.N. positions.

Won't Deny Western Rights NATO Is Told

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

PARIS (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk promised America's North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies today the United States never will negotiate away war-won Western rights in Berlin.

Conference sources said Rusk told the opening session of a three-day NATO meeting that the United States would not make a deal with the Soviet Union which questioned the right of Allied troops to garrison West Berlin, damaged free access to the isolated city, or threatened its freedom and economic health.

Rusk gave a long review of the U.S. position on Berlin, which has found the American and French governments at odds.

Despite Rusk's speech, there was no sign that the French were abandoning the attitude of suspicion toward talks with the Soviet Union.

By JOHN O. KOEHLER

PARIS (AP) — Gen. Lauris Norstad said today that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization nuclear arsenal is well-distributed and growing.

Speaking to the assembly of the Western European Union, NATO's supreme commander in Europe said current talk of making the alliance a third nuclear power has resulted in great misconceptions about its nuclear capability.

NATO, he continued, has had the capability of delivering nuclear blows against an aggressor for many years, and West Germany has had such capability for a few years.

But he emphasized: "There is no plan or suggestion or requirement to give independent control over nuclear warheads" to any country not already having them.

Nuclear warheads that would be available to NATO in the event of attack are now stockpiled at various American bases in Europe and controlled by the United States. At much smaller number of British warheads are controlled by Britain.

The other NATO countries have no nuclear warheads but do have missiles and projectiles that can be fitted with such warheads.

Norstad said the alliance has not done enough to strengthen its forces in the face of the Soviet threat to Berlin, but he acknowledged that significant efforts have been made to build up strength since the Communists threw up the wall through Berlin Aug. 13.

He said that at that time NATO had just over 21 divisions but they were all under strength and equivalent to only 15 or 16 effective divisions.

"The effectiveness has been considerably increased so that we will have 21 or 22 or possibly 23 fully equipped divisions ready by Jan. 1," the general said.

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

PARIS (AP) — Foreign, finance and defense ministers of the North Atlantic Alliance met today for their annual review with the shadow of the Communist wall through Berlin looming long over them.

The 15-nation council was expected to give its blessing to a new U.S.-British attempt to reach preliminary terms with the Russians on Berlin through negotiations between their ambassadors in Moscow and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

U.S. Secretary of State Rusk and British Foreign Secretary Lord Home disclosed through aides late Tuesday night that, after two days of talks with French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville and West German Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder, they had softened French reservations about the wisdom of resuming the quest for a Berlin deal.

It was clear, however, that French President Charles de Gaulle still was not convinced that Western-initiated exchanges with Moscow would be worthwhile. For that reason the French plan to stay out of them, at least until a possible compromise.

Rusk Insists UN Objectives Must Be Met

By LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States disagreed today with Britain's call for an immediate cease fire in the Congo. It said there should be no cease-fire until minimum objectives of the United Nations have been reached in the African trouble spot.

Undersecretary of State George W. Ball set forth what he termed these "honest differences of opinion" at a special news conference on the Congo crisis. Ball is acting foreign affairs chief in the absence of Secretary of State Dean Rusk who is in Paris.

"The British government has announced that it will ask U.N. Secretary General U Thant to seek an immediate cease fire in Katanga between U.N. forces there and those of secessionist Katanga leader Moise Tshombe."

Gambling at Spa to Be Probed

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Christian Civic Foundation said Tuesday Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy has agreed to investigate alleged illegal gambling operations at Hot Springs.

Dr. William E. Brown of Little Rock, executive secretary of the ACCF, said he had received a letter to that effect but declined to give further details.

Brown urged Kennedy last month to conduct an investigation of what he called open gambling in Hot Springs.

He requested the attorney general "to move into this situation to determine whether pay-offs are being made and why the laws are being flouted."

Mercury 6 Above in Arkansas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The temperature skidded to six degrees above zero at Beaver in northwest Arkansas just below the Missouri line early today.

Nowhere in the state did early-morning lows go above 21 degrees, the minimums reported for El Dorado and Pine Bluff.

Aside from Beaver's six, other low readings included eight degrees at Gilbert, nine at Fayetteville and Mountain Home, and 10 at Harrison.

A bright sun shone over most of the state today, but forenoon temperatures rose only slightly.

The U.S. Weather Bureau said it wouldn't be so cold tonight. Low temperatures were expected to range from near 20 in the north to the 30s in the southwest.

The forecast for Thursday was for warmer and increasing cloudiness with a chance of rain in some sections.

Surplus Food Deficit May Be Wiped Out

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — An expected $30,000 deficit in the state's surplus commodities program may be wiped out by transfer of funds from the Welfare Department's operating account, Commissioner Carl Adams said Tuesday.

Adams said increased federal spending for commodities has caused the state program financial difficulty.

"They are providing more commodities and a different type of commodity," Adams said.

The commissioner said the federal government spent $29.2 million on the program during the first six months of 1960 but $10.2 million the first half of this year.

One problem, Adams said, is that the new commodity list includes frozen meats and the state has to rent storage space for it at added expense.

The federal government provides the commodities at no cost to the state and the Arkansas Welfare Department receives $140,000 to operate its program.

County governments pay distribution expenses for the state's warehouse in Little Rock.

Adams said the state has only storage and administrative expenses which result in several million dollars in commodities being channeled yearly to the counties.

VAN BUREN, Ark. (AP) — Van Buren voters rejected a proposal $809,500 sewer improvement bond issue Tuesday, 555 for to 747 against. The state Board of Health has condemned the city's system and directed it to build a new sanitary, citywide sewage system.

A packed courtroom heard the state's demand for something remarkable in Israel where the death penalty has never been invoked before.

Eichmann, pale but composed, lightened his thin lips even more as he listened.

The attorney general, in his final declaration, said Eichmann "pursued his Satanic work for years, day after day, year after year, with conviction to destroy and kill. He was at the center of the plot to exterminate. There can be one sentence for him and no other."

shapes up.
U.S. Ambassador Lelewellyn Thompson, backed by British Ambassador Sir Frank Roberts, is expected to contact Gromyko early in the new year.

Other major issues facing the NATO ministers included:

1. Plans for giving European members some share in the political control of the use of tactical — not strategic — nuclear weapons.

2. President Kennedy's proposal to assign five Polaris-carrying nuclear submarines to NATO, a proposal that raises the complex question of the alliance becoming a sort of nuclear power in its own right.

3. The drive of Gen. Lauris Norstad, supreme Allied commander in Europe, to fulfill the seven-year-old NATO target of 30 combat-ready divisions on the ground in Europe. With this force he hopes he could contain any Red assault without having to resort to massive nuclear reprisals. NATO's effective strength now stands at about 25 divisions.

4. British demands for a larger sharing of the alliance's expenditure on weapon research, development and production programs. The British have been agitating for financial aid, saying otherwise they may have to cut back their army of the Rhine. At 51,000 men, it already is about 4,000 below Britain's commitment to NATO and its armor needs modernizing.

5. Moves to provide a greater impetus for a coordinated civil defense program. The underlying

Gen. Walker Criticizes U. S. Policy

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Former Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker sharply criticized the United Nations, U.S. foreign policy and censorship of the military Tuesday night in his first public address since becoming a civilian.

He addressed a cheering crowd estimated by a Dallas Memorial Auditorium employee at 5,600.

"I welcome the opportunity to stand before you as a symbol of the capability to coordinate the inspired and unchallengeable power of the people with the strength of our military forces. Such unity of purpose and spirit would cause an immediate capitulation of Reds and pinks from Dallas to Washington to Moscow and Peking," Walker said.

The 51-year-old Texan, who resigned from the Army after being reprimanded and relieved of command of the 24th Infantry division, was interrupted frequently with standing applause.

Walker referred to Army charges that he had criticized high government officials and attempted to influence the votes of soldiers in a right-wing indoctrination program.

"I have been charged with nothing. I have been found guilty of nothing. I have been punished for nothing. I have no grievances or regrets," Walker said.

"Today our relations and subordination to the United Nations puts every man signing the (Army) oath under a double standard," he said. "We are sworn to defend America but have to abide by U.N. decisions. Under these conditions, the oath becomes falsified and fictitious. I could no longer serve in uniform and be a collaborator with this release of our sovereignty to the U.N."

Walker said censorship of the military had accomplished three goals of the Communists: to reduce the size of U.S. armed forces, limit their use of weapons and undermine their training, morale, and sense of purpose.

To Speed College Funds Test Case

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A motion seeking to speed up consideration of a friendly test suit of a 1961 law allocating funds for a state college construction program has been docketed for Monday.

Parties in the suit requested Tuesday that top priority be given to the suit testing legality of the $8.5 million allocation.

Earlier this year a special legislative session approved Act 63, setting up a special building fund for the University of Arkansas and the seven state-supported colleges.

The suit seeks the court's opinion on the law's legality before any funds are allocated.

Opponents contend the state's fiscal stability will be jeopardized since the money would come from part of the reserves in the Revenue Stabilization fund.

Idea is that the Russians might be inclined to believe the Allies are resolved to fight back if energetic action is taken to protect civilians against nuclear strikes.

Canopy Height Ruling Delayed

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Commerce Commission took under advisement Tuesday a request by American Greetings Corp. of Osceola for a waiver of a commission regulation governing height of canopies over railroad loading docks.

The commission rule requires a clearance of 22 feet between the track and the lower edge of the canopy. The American plant at Osceola has a steel canopy, welded to the building, that is only 16 feet high.

C. N. Hope, representative of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen opposed the waiver at a hearing Tuesday. He said the American Greetings canopy clears the top of a boxcar by only 1 1/2 inches and constitutes a hazard to railroad switchmen working at the plant.

Refuses to Renew Radio License

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Federal Communications Commission examiner recommended against renewing the license of a Kings-tree, S.C., radio station in one of the few FCC cases based solely on programming.

The case involved the application of E. G. Robinson Jr., doing business as Palmetto Broadcasting Co. for the renewal of the license of WKDQ at Kings-tree.

The examiner's decision was based, primarily, on the ground that the license holder was "willfully inadequate" in discharging his responsibilities to guard against indecent programming, abuses with respect to the total amount of time devoted to advertising and the frequency of program interruptions for advertising messages.

Examiner Thomas H. Daphne issued the decision. It will stand unless an appeal is taken to the commission or the commission reviews it on its own motion.

The commission ordered a public hearing on the case after it said it had information to the effect that "one Charley Walker had broadcast over applicant's station material that was allegedly coarse, vulgar, suggestive, and susceptible of indecent double meaning."

Court Advises Nursing Home

BATESVILLE, Ark. (AP) — The Independence County Quorum Court recommended Tuesday that a new county nursing home be constructed as soon as a bond issue vote can be taken.

The court acted after a committee reported that the present home is a fire hazard and is inadequate for the county's needs. County Judge William Wood said the state Board of Health has threatened to revoke the home's license unless extensive improvements are made.

Wood said the federal government would pay two-thirds of the cost of the proposed new home under the Hill-Burton Act.

Cotton Men Approve Supports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cotton growers have overwhelmingly approved continuing national marketing quotas and price supports.

In a referendum Tuesday the program drew well over the two-thirds vote needed for approval. The Agriculture Department announced.

A department tabulation showed 268,116 growers of upland cotton voting to continue the program in 1962 with only 8,482 opposed. The quotas have been in effect since 1954.

This was a favorable vote of 96.9 per cent far in excess of the required two-thirds majority, and compares with the 96.6 per cent favorable vote last year.

Growers of extra long staple cotton voted 1,023 to 131, or a favorable percentage of 88.6.

Although Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman has not announced the price support for the 1962 upland cotton crop, prices will be supported at not less than 65

Inspector Cites Head of Agency

WASHINGTON (AP) — An inspector for the Federal Aviation Agency has recommended that Najeib E. Halaby, Federal Aviation Agency administrator, be cited for careless operation of a plane.

Halaby was at the controls of the agency's new million-dollar transport and was taking a takeoff slot at Washington's National Airport Nov. 9 when the plane brushed the wingtip of a parked United Air Lines plane waiting to take off.

No one was injured but the collision shattered a running light on the FAA plane and damaged the UAL plane's wingtip. The UAL flight was delayed about an hour.

An FAA spokesman said that Halaby had told the agency to investigate his accident just as it would anyone else's.

Two Arkansans Held in Robbery

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Joe Trivitt, 24-year-old graduate of the Arkansas penitentiary, and Gary A. Anderson, a 17-year-old companion from Mountain Home, Ark. were ordered held Tuesday on charges of beating up and robbing a 78-year-old member of the Missouri Legislature.

Harry Keller, an insurance agent between legislative sessions, was attacked Monday night in a restroom of a bar in the Linwood and Troost shopping district. He was robbed of $16 and a wrist-watch.

"If I had been sober, I never would have done it," police quoted Young Anderson as saying in a signed statement. He said he met Trivitt on a tavern hopping tour and blamed the attack on him.

Trivitt wouldn't talk. Police said he was sentenced to the Arkansas penitentiary in 1957 for grand larceny and has been arrested in several states and held for investigation in burglary and assault cases.

Hearings for Anderson and Trivitt were set for Dec. 21.

DOROTHY DIX Married Daughter Still a Little Girl

By HELEN WOREN ERSKINE
Dear Helen: Like a bolt out of the blue, my 27-year-old daughter, married six years, suddenly tells me she wants to come home to live sans husband. This poses a real problem.
You couldn't ask for a better man than my son-in-law—she admits that but adds she no longer loves him and therefore cannot be true to herself or him if they continue together.
They have no children. Both work. Her husband says he loves my daughter so much that if it will make her happier, he will live up to none of them. Say give her a divorce. Our doctor says "No" in capital letters. "World is he doing" the right selfishness. Your doctor is right, thing is taking her in? After all, if you want her to develop into

she is my only child and I still think of her as a little girl. — Worried Mother

Dear Worried Mother: Your little girl has never grown up. That's the crux of your problem. Only the immature are blind to their responsibilities. She needs a good talking to, either by your doctor, you, her husband, or all three. When she married, she assumed certain duties in life. Three of the most important being those of wife, mother and homemaker. From what you write, she's giving her a divorce. Our doctor says "No" in capital letters. "World is he doing" the right selfishness. Your doctor is right, thing is taking her in? After all, if you want her to develop into a woman of character, say "No" too. Otherwise you'll always have a little girl on your hands.

Wanted to Make Money for Church

PITTSBURGH (AP)—When Ootavia Jones, 34, of Pittsburgh, Pa., was arrested Monday on charges of operating a speakeasy, he asked her why she allegedly had sold beer and liquor illegally.
"The church needed an organ, and I wanted to make some money to buy one," she explained.
Judge Cercone fined her $300 and ordered her to pay costs.

HOURS TO KILL

Chapter XXVII

Kincaid produced a road map. "They started south, so chances are they wouldn't retrace their steps north. They'd probably keep going southwest or west. Your sister wants a rest, and that would mean not more than 250 or 300 miles a day, maybe a little more or less—that's if they kept moving and didn't settle down somewhere. That would bring them roughly—"

Something about Margaret's still and total silence made him glance up. He slapped the tour book shut and stood. "You ought to be in bed, and I ought to be shot. I'll do the telephoning from my place, and call you as soon as I find out anything. I'll call you anyway. You'd be surprised at how often people fall into conversation on trips, and mention their plans."

"Not people with plans like Philip's," said Margaret. "For all we know, he may have gone in exactly the other direction, he may have already—"

"You'd know," said Kincaid. "For a moment, in the hot confessions of her mind, Margaret thought he meant it in some occult sense. Then she understood, and said in the same dead steady voice, "Out in all that desert? I doubt it."

Kincaid started to speak and checked himself. Then he said, "The doctor will be here before 12. In the meantime, is there someone you could get to come in and help out for a while?"

"No... Yes, I think so. If you aren't a policeman," said Margaret over the distant and querulous rise of Hilary's voice "how did you know all this?"

Kincaid's hand tightened on the doorknob and relaxed again, but the brief movement had released the catch and let in a thin flash of spring - colored light that seemed to cut the faded old Oriental rugs. "Byrne's second wife, Ellen Morrow, was my first cousin. I grew up with her."

The glance he lifted to Margaret from an apparent absorption with the stripe of light was very clear and absolutely empty. "I've had my eye on Byrne for quite a while."

Dr. Wimple arrived at shortly after 12. He took Margaret's temperature, looked down her throat and into her ears, listened to her lungs, counted her pulse twice. By persistent questioning, Margaret found that her temperature was almost 103, her right tonsil was badly infected, there was congestion in her lungs, her pulse was fast.

He said that she would have to go to bed at once, wrote out a prescription that he would have delivered, and asked after her little girl.

"Oh, she's not mine. She's—her parents—oh," said Margaret despairingly. "I can't go into it."

She went with Wimple, still shuddering uncontrollably now and then, while he examined Hilary, said something about secondary infections, and removed a long curl of red crayon delicately from the heel of his shoe. "Now, can you find someone to come in? Otherwise I'd advise the hospital."

For the first time in her life, Margaret found the thought of a hospital appealing.

But she would be shut away from even indirect contact with Hilary. "I have someone I can call," said Margaret, folding her arms tightly around herself, "and she can take care of both of us."

Wimple put things back in his bag. "Had any more trouble with your visitor of the other night?"

Why did he ask that just now the catch and let in a thin flash of spring - colored light that seemed to cut the faded old Oriental rugs. "Byrne's second wife,

No, I'm sure he was quite harmless anyway," said Margaret, meeting his gaze.

"I did the autopsy on a bit-and-run victim on this street that night," said Dr. Wimple, equally off-hand, "and took a bullet out of him. Julio Garcia, his name was. But of course the man you saw would have told you if he'd been shot. He'd certainly have been looking for help."

He could not have seen the bloodied flagstones in the dark; he couldn't know, even though her face must be flaming. This was the tiniest portion of what she could expect if she told the police about Julio Garcia's last visit, because although she had neither gun nor car they would find it difficult to believe that she hadn't known he was hurt, impossible to understand the panic that had driven her to wash the stones of the porch.

To explain that she would have to explain about Philip and Cornelia and herself and Mrs. Feale—with a scrap of proof? She would look like a classically jealous and bitter woman, determined to "cave the roof in on the man who had humiliated her. More important, they would almost certainly detain her for questioning, or whatever it was they did, and she would be out of touch with Cornelia at this time that mattered most.

"I don't think it could have been the same man," said Margaret, allowing doubt to creep in.
